It is more likely that the repo seller may go bankrupt, if the interconnectedness of the repo buyer is large. The contents of this paper are not only of interest to researchers, but also to regulators and financial institutions.

Political scientist Karl Ucakar, in his monumental study of Austrian electricity. The real estate prices were naturally the highest in Kiev, and almost every house had a garden. Therefore, with growing income the saving ratio is higher. The fallback to obscurity by the end of the century came along with the relaxation in those doubts. This project clearly calls for increased cooperation between the two disciplines.
