Olga talks about her anger toward her Gentile father, which was still evident at the time of the interview, due to his fear during the Holocaust concerning what would happen to him if she was recognized as being Jewish. Chava, who is aware of her high level of anxiety concerning her children, expresses in her interview the belief that she is incapable of doing anything about it. He survived the two ghettos set up in his home town of Bedzin and six months on Auschwitz's notorious Kommando where prisoners were either taken away for entry to the camp or gassing.
